Circus Ball Will Roll Up Funds for Aid of Unemployed

By Hal Garrott

The Time—Saturday January 28 at 9 p.m. The Place—the Old Monterey Polo Club House in the Del Monte Polo Field. The Girl—that's your affair. And now, what is it?

A grand (indoor) Circus Ball with sawdust ring, side shows, pink lemonade, dancing, prizes for best home-made costumes, Ed Fitzpatrick's eleven piece orchestra (famous), William Abbott of Pebble Beach with his equipment for fun—and profit for you or the unemployed, as the case may be), a bar, Charles Van Riper, Moira Wallace, Paul Whitman putting in long hours over circus decorations that will make Madison Square Garden look sick, S. F. B.

Morse as barker for "the Mystery man"—a grand surprise, Mme Doreen telling fortunes—all of this and a great deal more provided by generous workers and donors so that the entire proceeds may go to the aid of the unemployed.

A. G. Spalding is giving a pig skin bag as prize for the best home made costume worn by a man. Magnin is rewarding the woman wearing the winning woman's home made costume with Italian black marble book ends carved in the form of elephants. Anything goes, overalls, hick dress, Louis the Fourteenth, the gay '90s, though I have been reliably informed that so far invitations have been withheld from the Carmel Nudist Colony, in spite of the fact that their costumes are home made.

For the best fun in a lifetime and a brotherly lift to the unemployed, don't miss the high spot of this or any season—the Circus Ball.

New Officers Are Elected by Local Merchants' Group

An entire group of new officers will guide the activities of the Carmel Business association during the new year, it was decided at the annual meeting of the organization held last week.

Eugene Watson, Carmel print-shop proprietor was elected president of the organization, succeeding Robert Parrott. Bernard Rowntree was named vice-president; Barnet Segal, secretary and Dan Chew, treasurer.

Members of the organization which was formed a year ago, decided to discontinue the regular monthly business meetings. Instead, the sessions will be held at the call of the president.

According to Watson, the organization will operate similarly to the reserve corps of the army. It will spring into action when needed to protect and safeguard the interests of Carmel merchants.

Membership of the organization as in the past will be restricted to business and professional men and women of Carmel who have been residents here for at least a year. Dues were reduced to $2.50 a year.

The business association was organized by laws of the organization clearly stress that the association is not of a "booster type" but was formed merely to protect Carmel business men and women.

Dr. Wilson Davidson attended a meeting last week of the Monterey county medical society held in Salinas. Dr. Davidson was one of the speakers.

Petitions For Zoning of Area Outside Carmel Are Circulated

With the formal hearing to protect by zoning the surrounding territory of Carmel scheduled for the end of the month, petitions were being circulated today requesting the planning commission to recommend residential restrictions for the property.

Despite the fact that the petitions were put in circulation only early this week, several hundred signatures have already been obtained, it was reported. It is expected that they will have one thousand names when presented to the planning commission on January 31.

The petition asks the commission to recommend to the supervisors only such zoning as would permanently restrict a strip of land 500 feet wide on each side of the state highway between the present approximate location of the Del Monte Properties toll gate on the top of Carmel Hill, and the point where the highway now or eventually will cross the Carmel river. The petitions further ask that this strip mentioned be zoned for residential purposes only.

As a reason for the residential zoning, the petitions go on to say that the area in question is the northern entrance to the Carmel-San Simeon highway and the newly created Point Lobos State Park, both of which were constructed and acquired by the state of California, chiefly for the purpose of displaying to and preserving the natural beauty of the Monterey peninsula. The petitions stress that allowing commercialized encroachment on the highway would ruin the entire beauty for which millions in expenditures have been made by the state.

The formal hearing when the petition will be presented is scheduled for Monday, January 31 at 2:30 o'clock. Over 300 Carmel residents are expected to be present to urge verbally their request that the highway at the entrance of Carmel be protected against auto camps and other commercialized enterprises.

A recommendation from the commission is necessary to bring the matter up before the supervisors, who must then go over the zoning plan and formally adopt it. It is understood that if the commission favors the zoning plan, the supervisors will take immediate steps to adopt it.

Politeness in Fighting Fires Demanded by Inquiry Board

Carmel's fire chief not only must fight flames efficiently, but he must be chivalrous and gentle in dealing with residents.

This was the decision reached Tuesday night at a formal hearing conducted by a committee appointed by the city council to investigate charges made against Fire Chief Robert Leidig that he was inefficient and discourteous in the pursuit of his duties.

The committee while exonerating Chief Leidig of the charges made by George Alfred Beal, warned him that in the future he must be courteous and use no language that might be considered objectionable.

The investigation committee composed of Fire Commissioner John B. Jordan, Mayor Catlin and City Attorney Argyll Campbell, cleared Chief Leidig of any inefficiency on his part in fire fighting work.

Charges against Leidig were filed with the city council by Beal, following a fire which partly destroyed his home on Guadalupe and First streets. He claimed that the department arrived without sufficient hose and with only a limited amount of chemicals.

His wife, Mrs. Beal, one of the witnesses at the hearing, told the investigating committee that Leidig delayed the operation of the department by asking her needless questions.

"He told me that we deserved to be blown up for having the gasoline stove in our house," Mrs. Beal said.

Mayor Catlin asked Chief Leidig if that was true.

"No, I cannot remember having said that," Leidig replied.

"Of course he can't," Mrs. Beal flashed back, "He was too excited to remember anything."

The hearing for some moments became so heated in arguments that Commissioner Jordan who presided, had to constantly call for order.

When Birney Adams, assistant fire chief, took the stand, it was the fire department's turn to make charges.

He accused Beal of being discourteous to members of the department and charged him with "swearing at the firemen like a madman."

This Beal denied and again the arguments became heated and Commissioner Jordan had to rap severely with the gavel to maintain order.

One of the principal witnesses during the hearing was Fire Chief W. E. Parker of Monterey. Chief Parker's testimony was of a technical nature and cleared Chief Leidig of the charge that he had not fought the Beal fire adequately.

"I know the exact locality of the Beal cottage and the manner in which it was fought," Parker said. "I believe that Chief Leidig and his men worked as efficiently as any department could in extinguishing the blaze."

Stephen A. Reynolds, brought to the attention of the investigating committee the danger of sending all three fire engines at one time to the scene of a blaze. He pointed out that if another fire should break out at the same time, the flames would spread before the fire department arrived.

The hearing which lasted until almost midnight ended by the committee clearing Chief Leidig of the charges and expressing full confidence in the operation of the volunteer department.

Beal also thanked Leidig and the department and admitted that the hearing had cleared several points which were the basis of his original complaint.

It is understood that a practical demonstration of the department in that section of Carmel would be staged shortly to show the efficiency of the fire fighting apparatus. Mayor Catlin also stressed that he would recommend to the council the installation of more fire hydrants in that locality.

Appeal For Worldwide Peace Is Contained in Educator's Will

Even in death, Preston W. Search, nationally known educator and lecturer, has shown the horror of war and the efficacy of peace.

In his last message, a part of his will filed for probate in the superior court at Salinas, Search left to his "innumerable students and friends, my faith in God and man and my continued message that life values are to be measured only in terms of giving and service."

"To my fellow men," the aged educator had written in his will, "I would transmit my abhorrence of war, my belief in the efficacy of peace and my conviction that the solution of the difficulties lies in brotherhood, forgiveness and co-operative unity."

In his will, Search bequeathed all his possessions to his wife, Mrs. Margaret F. Search, "who has been my co-partner in my every enterprise." On her death in 1926, a postscript was added in which he deposed of his estate to his only son, Frederick Preston Search, Carmel musician and composer.

"To all my relatives, and especially my devoted sister, my nieces and my son's wife, I leave my unreserved love and esteem, my pride in our family name and heritage and my blessings, in perpetuo, to all who may come after us."

Search who since his retirement from educational work in 1914, had been a resident in Carmel died last month in Riverside while visiting relatives there.

The worldly accumulations of the famous educator—the man who originated the present system of city schools and lectured in many universities, were listed in a paragraph. They include a $3000 home in Carmel; an acreage in the Highlands valued at $1000; furniture and books $100 and $100 worth of stock.

Postal Receipts Show

Considerable Increase

There's plenty of prosperity at the Carmel postoffice.

There were thirty more post-office boxes signed for by last Saturday than there were at the end of January in 1932, according to the figures of Postmaster William Overstreet.

Each postoffice box, Overstreet said, has an average family of three. Using this figure, there are more residents here this winter than there were last year. Postal receipts for outgoing mail has also shown an increase when compared with other years.

Cruelty Charged In

Local Divorce Suit

Charges of extreme cruelty were the basis of the divorce complaint filed this week in the superior court at Salinas by Mrs. Helen Eturra against Jose T. Eturra. Both reside in Carmel and were married two years ago. They have no children.

The Eturra legal action was one of ten divorce suits filed in the county in the last ten days. This is said to be the largest number to have been recorded in that space of time.

Legion Awards to be ### Given to Local Pupils

Cole Weston and Elizabeth Allen Uzzell, both students at Sunset school will be among the youngsters of the Monterey peninsula to receive American Legion awards at ceremonies to be held in Pacific Grove next Monday night.

The awards will be presented by William A. Irvine, commander of the 13th district of the American Legion. The ceremonies will be held in the Pacific Grove grammar school auditorium starting at 7:45 o'clock.

Fish Sues Gordon Moore

for $25,000 Note Loan

A millionaire and an ex-millionaire will find themselves facing each other shortly in the superior court at Salinas.

Sidney Fish, Carmel valley resident, brought suit this week for $25,000 here against George Gordon Moore, erstwhile millionaire and a neighbor of Fish. The suit was filed over a promissory note executed in 1930 and falling due on December 31, 1932.

As security on the note Moore put up 833 shares of capital stock in an oil company. Since that time the security has become valueless, Fish asserts. In addition to payment of the full amount, Fish asks interest of six per cent.

Annual Tax List Will

Show $6,000 Delinquency

$6,000 delinquency of taxes on Carmel property will be shown in the annual tax list now being completed, according to Judge George Wood who is handling the work.

The usual tax roll brings approximately $40,000 in tax money on which to operate the city government. This year, the total will be around $34,000.

While the delinquent tax list is somewhat larger this year than in 1932, Wood said that the amount of unpaid taxes is not as large as anticipated. It is believed that Carmel's delinquency list will be among the lowest of any other community in the county.

Many large property owners, it is said, prefer to have the use of their money at ten per cent than to pay the taxes. While the property when it becomes delinquent in taxes is taken over by the city, it cannot be sold for five years and can be regained at any time within that period by the owner.

Carmel taxes became delinquent on December 26. The complete tax roll will be up for consideration on the fourth Monday of this month.

Carmel Dairy Team

Beaten by Grocers

In a hard fought basketball game in Monterey last week, the Carmel Dairy team was defeated by Neuman's Grocery to a tune of 26 to 13.

The dairymen and the grocers were tied seven to seven at the end of the closely contested first half. In the last two periods, however, the winners speeded up their offenses and caused the defeat of the Carmel team. On the Carmel team were Ricketts, Miller, Walls, Belvail, Warren, Staniford and Harbolt.

Boy Scouts Take Trip

To Mine on Coast Road

Members of the Carmel Boy Scout troop took their first trip alone since they were organized last week-end.

The boys left Saturday morning at 7:15 o'clock on bicycles going up to the Highlands on the coast road as far south as San Remo. There they hid the bicycles in the brush and hiked to the top of a steep hill where the old coal mine is located. The boys returned back to Carmel by 4:30 o'clock.

Among those in the group who went were, Rolf Johnnot, Rolf Lee, Allen Lane, Albert Petty, Louis Holshouser, Bob Rand, Joe Stewart, Harrison Foster and Earl Dorrance.

IS THAT SO?

By Winsor Josselyn

A Carmel man once defeated the advance publicity each player the championship University of was ballyhooed to the sky. Fred, Southern California football team having lived in Los Angeles, was single handed. touted a U. S. C. hero.

It was back in 1930. Frederick "It got me mad," said Fred, Godwin, of La Playa Hotel fame, "and I decided to show the town got tired of hearing that he had played star end on the U. S. C. par-tisan. I heard that U. S. C. was team a few years earlier. Truth was that he had not, but once the Carmel Abalone All Stars had gone over the hill to smack down a challenge team at football (when we were much less brittle) and in going north to play Washington State and dedicate the new stadium at Pullman. I wired the Washington State Athletic Control that I was coming—to cheer for them. A thousand miles I was driving at top speed to see them win over Southern California."

Leaving Carmel at daybreak of a Thursday, the Godwins raced into Pullman Saturday morning. As they checked in for tickets, a gentleman lifted his hat and said, "The Frederick Godwins, I presume?"

It was the Chief of Board of Athletic Control. In the midst of all that mob he had spotted the California car, the California manner—the Northern California manner—of the newcomers. Ticks, rooms, rousing welcome awaited. And the mystified Godwins accepted this western hospitality none the less because of its unexpectedness.

The game is history. From fifty yard line seats the Godwins saw Washington State win 7-6 in a thrilling fight where Washington State would not be beaten by a superior team. And why? Because of Fred Godwin—our fellow Carmelite.

Just as Fred was leaving the stadium a disheveled, arm-waving man burst from the training quarters and cried Fred's name. It was the Board of Athletic Control.

"There he is!" he cried, and before seventy thousand delirious spectators, "the man who won the game. We read his telegram to team. The boys could not lose. Godwin! Godwin! . . ."

Cracks

Tom Wilson, who helps Henry Ford at Louis Levinson's, likes to laugh—and to make people laugh. Tom started off the New Year with some cracks that must go down in imperishable newstype.

Said Tom, upon awakening with the Sunday sun in his eyes, and surveying the debris-littered guest house he occupied, "Must have been a flock of leopards here last night . . . nothing but spots!" And then he said meditatively, "Well anyhow, all God's teeth got fillins."

News Notes

"She doesn't mind her nicknames of Steve and Bill. She likes 'em. But don't call her Babe, or she'll bust right down and cry."

Penalty of being the youngest in the family.

Over there at the Fish ranch against the mountain, last Sunday a heavy column of blue smoke was rising in the noon air near the house.

"I knew it!" said a guest, starting across the valley toward the ranch. "Sidney has gone and burned the barbecue steaks!"

A small boy panted into Dr. Stanford's drug store the other noon. The Doc had visions of heart stimulents, of oxygen tanks, of fracture splints.

"Gimme—gimme a Brownie kodak film!" gasped the boy. "I gotta get back to school."

Just one of the high points in a druggist's day.

Mr. Russell Easton, of Oakland and Carmel—and a noted patron of the arts—will someday learn not to pull fast-cracks on the main street. Because here is where we get right back at him.

"Where," asked Mr. Easton, "is your mother this bright afternoon? Get her to take you to the Purity store. Every little boy with his mama will get a free balloon!"

Looking into the tonneau of his racing sedan, we saw nine red balloons floating against the top. That very night Mr. Easton gave a dinner party with the balloons for favors. Voila!

This Week's True Story

She had red hair, a Rolls-Royce and a divorce—and she was lonesome. Well, nobody remains lonesome long in this town with such advantages, and, before the first week was out, her chauffeur was wondering how so many people could get in the car at one time.

"I would like to give a quiet little party tomorrow night," she said, "to repay you wonderful boys for all you have done—"

Note: You fictioneers lay off this yarn—it's already ours).

Family Moves Into New Carmelo Street Home

With their new two-story structure on Carmelo street completed, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Darling of Denver, Colorado, were putting the finishing touches on the furnishings of the home.

The house is equipped with all modern conveniences, including an electric dish washer and gas heat. The house was designed by C. J. Ryland, Carmel architect, in Monterey-Colonial style and has a large living room, 17 by 28 feet.

One of the features of the home is a study finished in redwood which shares the second floor with two large bedrooms connected with bath. In the study are built-in book cases.

Miles Bain also of Carmel was the builder on the job. The Darlings have planned to make their permanent home here.

Vienna Choir Boys' Recital Packs Auditorium to Doors

By Hal Garrott

The Carmel Music Society opened its 1933 season Saturday night with a recital by the Wiener Saengerknaben, who are making a concert tour of the largest cities in the country—and Carmel. Sunset Auditorium was crowded to the doors. Long before 8:30 every seat (including 50 extra chairs in the balcony) had been sold, and "standing room only" was disposed of to scores. After every available place to stand had been occupied, some two hundred were turned away. Nine hundred in all were admitted into a hall whose seating capacity is given as 777.

The choir boys faced a big and critical audience in a hall whose acoustic shortcomings have wrecked many a local performer's "big moment"—I speak from experience. Yet, these children aged 9 to 12, made themselves clearly heard throughout. Their singing had a professional finish that was astonishing even if their organization does date back to 1485.

Dr. George Gruher, musical director, brought forth fine contrasts, shadings, stirring attack and artistic phrasing. The stage deportment of these twenty youngsters—(there were twenty until one got the "tummy" ache and had to leave suddenly)—was as finished as their musical performance.

If at times the youthful voices seemed a bit shrill, harsh, sharp, it is not to be wondered at. Putting over a heavy program each night in the country's largest auditorium is bound to strain the tender vocal cords of children. In the pianissimo passages the tone lost its shrillness and became a thing of beauty. In the Haydn one-act opera, "The Apothecary" the choir proved again that children can be trained to do anything. These talented lads moved about the stage enacting a drama while singing the arias, duets, trios, quartets and choruses of a great classical composer. The costumes were colorful, and indeed, the whole show was so successful, the encores and recalls were too numerous to record.

Having demonstrated their ability to pack Sunset Auditorium and turn away 200 over, the Carmel Music Society faces the coming season with confidence. Apparently their only problem is finding a hall in Carmel that will seat from 1200 to 1500.

Many Local Artists to Show Work at Exhibit

Many Carmel and Monterey peninsula artists were preparing this week to send pictures for the sixth annual state wide exhibit to be held under the auspices of the Santa Cruz art league.

The exhibit opens in Santa Cruz on February 5th and continues until February 20th. The jury of selection and awards will include Chapell Judson, well known Pebble Beach painter.

All artists throughout California have been invited to send representative work to the exhibit. The first prize of $150 is for oils while the second prize in oils is $75. The first prize in water colors is $50. A number of other prizes ranging from $50 to $100 will be also awarded.

In past years, many Carmel artists have won several of the prize awards.

Neah-Kah-Nies Return for Carmel Season

By Hal Garrott

The Neah-Kah-Nie String Quartet consisting of Susie Pipes, first violin, Michel Penha, cellist, Hubert Sorenson, second violin, and Abraham Weiss, viola, arrived late Saturday night to begin their five months residence in the village. Accompanying them was Ralph Linsley, concert pianist, who is slated to play a concerto with the local orchestra.

Carmel turned out in spite of the rain to give the newcomers a rousing welcome at the Denny-Watrous Gallery Sunday night.

Greetings had barely begun to subside when Michel Penha ripped off his coat, and got down to business rehearsing the Monterey Peninsula Chamber Orchestra. Wind choir and strings received a strenuous drilling. Some measures were played over as many as twenty times. With wit and banter Conductor Penha kidded his players until sour notes lost some of their bitterness, and passages that curdled turned fresh and creamy.

There were new faces in the orchestra, and more are expected to take advantage of the free tuition offered by a famous cellist who has conducted many a rehearsal of the San Francisco Symphony, and who was for years leading cellist in Stokowski's famous orchestra. Castroville, Watsonville, Salinas, the Big Sur, are now represented. And as soon as news of the opportunity the Carmel Music Society is offering spreads, orchestral performers from all parts of the county and beyond will flock to the village.

Orchestra rehearsals will be held twice a week, Thursdays and Sundays at 8 p.m. in the Denny-Watrous Gallery. Quartet rehearsals, fully as enjoyable as public concerts, are scheduled at 8 p.m. Tuesdays. Season ticket holders are admitted to all rehearsals. If you want a seat come early.

Carol Weston, Dorey Blaney

A treat is in store for Carmel music lovers at the Denny-Watrous Gallery February 4. Carol Weston, who has been conducting the local orchestra in Michel Penha's absence, and Dora Blaney, the well known pianist will play a program of violin and piano sonatas. Among others we are promised the beautiful Cesar Franck sonata and the most popular Brahms.

Grove Woman to Talk Before Local Group

Mrs. Charles Draper of Pacific Grove will speak before the Federated Missionary society at a meeting to be held at All Saints' Parish house on Wednesday afternoon, January 25, at 2:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Draper who is well known as an interesting speaker will talk on "Lady Fourth Daughter." Mrs. Otto Bardarson will sing. Visitors are cordially invited.

Carmel Well Represented in Magazines This Month

Carmel was well represented in national fiction magazines during the first part of this month.

A new novel laid in Monterey and Big Sur country by Frederick Becholdt started in the January issue of the Blue Book magazine and will continue in three large installments. The novel is called "Breaker's Ahead."

James Hopper had a short short in Liberty this month. Stephen Allen Reynolds had a short story in Adventure and Samuel G. Blythe has another article coming out late this month in the Saturday Evening Post.

Speakers Lined Up by Woman's Peace League

A group of prominent speakers have been lined up to give talks and lead discussions during the coming months under the auspices of the Carmel branch of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom.

On February 5, Charles Roberts in Hollywood with pneumonia. Aldrich, well known Carmel scientific writer will talk on the "Psychological Side of Economics." His address will be given at the Greene studio on Lincoln near Santa Lucia.

Dr. John MacWillie, who has lived many years in China will discuss the oriental problem on March 5 at the home of Mrs. Vera Peck Millis on San Antonio street.

Albert Rhys Williams will give his views of the Russian situation on April 2 at the home of Misses Kellogg on Casanova.

Lincoln Steffens will be the featured speaker in a debate to be held at the Denny-Watrous Gallery on May 9. His opponent has not yet been selected nor the question to be discussed.

The many Carmel friends of Mrs. Nat Beverich will be sorry to hear that she is in the hospital

UNCLE SAM'S BUSINESS

Let us begin this editorial by stating that the PINE CONE has no financial interest in the location of the new postoffice, directly or indirectly. We are one of the very few concerns in Carmel whose business can not be affected by moving Uncle Sam's mailing station anywhere it sees fit. Neither do we own any building site, or the land close by any site.

There is no selfish interest in our saying, flatly, that the Carmel postoffice should be kept within the present limits of the business zone. To place it in a residence section would violate the spirit, if not the legal letter, of the zoning law, which is the fundamental safeguard for Carmel's future—its Magna Charta. It would destroy all that has been so carefully built up for Carmel, the promise of commercial immunity to the residence zone, and the promise to business that its zone would not be extended or increased.

Around the postoffice will be—should be—a center of business. It furnishes a perfectly good reason for an adjoining shopping district. If it moves to a new location, that location will surely become commercial. If that location be in the residence district, then its inclusion in the business zone will come about. Either business will be divided into two locations, or the two locations will be connected into a starved and hungry elongated one. And the business section of Carmel is plenty big enough right now, for now and for the future as far ahead as we can see it.

There are sites of size enough within the business zone for the new postoffice, even should it require all the land that the call for bids implies, 27,000 square feet. Nor are the prices asked unduly high. There

ICARUS

I fashion flimsy wings of song
Yet strangely fleet they are to me;
They cannot hold by body long
Or bear me to immensity.

What though I can not reach the heights
And as I fall, the bleak air stings!
I look ahead to higher flights,—
I have my wings!

Isabel Neill

GREY

Up among the grey clouds,
Through the grey rain,
The wild ducks are trailing
Their wavering chain.

Frailer than a lace thread,
Through the waste of grey,
Steadily the wraith-chain
Drags my heart away.

Karl Wilson Baker

seems to be no attempt on the part of the property owners to hold up the government in a sale. On the contrary, offers are made at less than the price asked in private sale. It is not probable that business property is as low in price as that in the residence district, but neither is land in the suburbs as valuable as that in town. Considering location, the postoffice department need not fear any extortion.

So Carmel is demanding, with a unanimity that is remarkable, that within the boundaries of the business zone shall be the range of selection for a site for the new postoffice building. Leave the residence districts of Carmel untainted by commercialism of any kind, local or national.

THAT POET LAUREATE

Take this poet laureate business, for instance. California might manage to limp along without a poet laureate, and California's legislature could, maybe, find something to do like balancing its budget, or cutting the costs of government, without having to decide whether Mr. Keeler of Berkeley or Mr. James of Covina is better able to rhyme poppy with sloppy. Even if the entire double session of the legislature of 1933 didn't hear a line of verse it wouldn't seriously affect the orange crop, nor lighten the burden of the taxpayers a penny.

However, if California must have a poet laureate, Carmel's claims in the verse-making line should not be ignored, and the PINE CONE stands ready to sign a petition to Senator Tickle that will place any one of a half dozen Carmel poets in the running. And, of course, there is only one Californian poet that would merit the title and honor it: Robinson Jeffers.

People Talked About

Upon the shoulders of a Carmel resident will fall the responsibility of the science exhibition which will be part of the Chicago World Fair.

The science display will probably be one of the most important features of the fair and Carmel can proudly boast of the fact that Dr. D. T. MacDougal will be in direct charge.

To Dr. MacDougal, however, it is just one of many honors that have come to him during a lifetime devoted not only to scientific research, but to exploration in far corners of the world and to writing. In Carmel, he is head of the Carnegie coastal laboratories which is now engaged in a study of the growth of trees which may before long reveal some startling information.

By profession, Dr. MacDougal is a biologist and has studied plant life in West Indies, Africa and in fact all over the globe. Some six years ago, Dr. MacDougal was in the public eye, when he perfected a capsule of jellies and parchment which imitated the activities of a living cell.

Yet, always the scientist, Dr. MacDougal did not delude himself in the belief that he had created life. He did succeed, however, in arranging laboratory material that performed active work, a cell that could maintain its acid character while living in an alkaline solution.

Dr. MacDougal is one of the outstanding pioneers in biological research work and has many books to his credit in which he tells of his scientific discoveries and theories. At one time he was the editor of the Journal of New York Botanical Garden and later was one of the organizers of "Science Service," which was formed to popularize and give accurate news of scientific developments to the press. He is still one of the associate editors of The Scientific American.

Dr. MacDougal will shortly leave his Carmel Highland's home for Chicago where he will complete preparations for the science exhibit of the World Fair. Of hundreds of leading scientists all over the country, it is a significant fact that Dr. MacDougal was selected for the task.

Said Harry Carr in his column, "The Lancer," in the Los Angeles Times:

On the Catalina boat, some nice New England people introduced themselves.

They have lived in Los Angeles since its golden days when it had 50,000 people. Now they want to move out. We had a council.

I suggested Santa Barbara or La Jolla.

The husband said he didn't want to live anywhere—just wander around in an automobile.

But on second thought, she had to have a place for her antiques and he fancied a bit of land. So we came back to the Santa Maria Valley or the Santa Inez.

And then we decided that when the new road opens between San Luis Obispo and Monterey, the Big Sur region will be the most wonderful part of California. Great forests reaching down to the azure waters of the Monterey coast line.

Of the sixteen "baby stars" of 1932, culled from the crop by the publicity men of Hollywood, the Wampas, Gloria Stuart, former newspaper woman and community actress of Carmel, is one. Because of her work with Universal in "Street of Women," "Old Dark House," "All American," "Air-mail," "Laughter in Hell," and "Private Jones," she was given the accolade of stardom, and will be publicized to the limit in 1933.

The 1932 group is composed of fifteen American girls and one Japanese. Nine are blondes, two redheads, five are black or brown-haired. One is from Oskaloosa, Iowa, and one from Los Angeles Chinatown. One is a beauty contest winner, and one was signed by the movies as a result of winning the highest honors for women swimmers in the Olympic Games.

The sixteen baby stars of the Wampas' selection are June Clyde, Lilian Miles, Marian Shockley, Mary Carlisle, Boots Mallory, Lona Andre, Gloria Stuart, Ruth Hall, Toshia Mori, Dorothy Wilson, Lilian Bond, Dorothy Layton, Eleanor Holm, Evalyn Knapp, Patricia Ellis and Ginger Rogers.

Mrs. Helen Wilson and her son Master Peter Kinsey, grandson Leon Wilson motored to San Francisco this week to see Mary Hospital suffering from a severe case of croup.

The Devil Walks

By Herbert Cerwin

The learned state legislature is about to make a momentous and weighty decision—it will shortly proclaim the new poet laureate of California.

Appointment of the poet laureate in the golden state will be made in the maze of deficits, budgets fall and taxes which faces the legislators.

The naming of a poet laureate is not an easy task. After all, the poets swing a heavy vote in California. The poet with the petition containing the largest number of registered voters will win the crown.

Two poets are in the race, Roy Walter James of Covina and Charles Keeler of Berkeley.

We are betting on Keeler—he was secretary of the Berkeley chamber of commerce and his songs of praise on the golden state can be sung by Elks and Druids.

Carmel, of course, has no chance to battle for the honor of having a poet laureate in its midst. After all, the songs of its major poet, could not be sung at a gubernatorial inauguration.

Carmel will be adequately represented on the bookstands in 1933. Elfa Winter has a book on Russia coming out in the spring. Bob

Ritchie has an autobiography in the hands of a publisher. Fred Becholdt plans to have another fiction book on the fall list. Jeffers, a volume of poems. Stephen Allen Reynolds has also an autobiography to come out in the Carl Van Doren has a biography on Sinclair Lewis just off the press.

Almost an entire chapter, we are told, is devoted to the days when Lewis and Benet lived and starved in a Carmel cottage.

The biography reveals that Lewis' first book was an adventure story for boys called: "Hike and the Aeroplane." The name of the author on the title page is Tom Graham and was published in 1912.

Lewis' copy of the book has an autograph: "To Sinclair Lewis from the author, Tom Graham, his altered ego."

Jig-saw puzzles are not the only thing that are confusing readers these days. Before the end of January, three books on Technocracy will be on the stands.

Outstanding literary news from London: One thousands copies of unbound books dealing with contract bridge have just been reported stolen to Scotland Yard.

Carmel Blushes as Naked Venus Directs Ocean Avenue Traffic

Carmel awoke Saturday, blinked the village to its place of destiny its shadowed eyes and then blush-ed. A naked statue, in the inter-section of Ocean avenue and San Antonio street, was guiding nonchalantly the traffic.

The scantily attired Venus de Milo and its 400 pounds of weight, was lifted from the front yard of Fred Wermuth on San Carlos street and transported clear across muth front yard which its feminine beauty has adorned for the past three years.

Four Carmel youths, all sons of prominent local families, were seized by the officers for allegedly taking Venus for a walk. The four, Neil Weston, Bob Scripture, Joe Schoeninger Jr. and William Duree were cited to appear in court and trial was set by Police Judge George L. Wood for January 31.

Ever since Wermuth took possession of the valued objet d'art when its owners were unable to pay a storage bill, it has been the center of considerable controversy. Wermuth claims that the Venus is worth $3000 but art connoisseurs of the village maintain it isn't even a work of art. Yet the statue is made of old Italian marble and its workmanship has attracted many visiting sculptors.

Venus has smiled blandly. Even when on the last fourth of July, a hand bomb was thrown at the fair lady, seriously damaging one of her arms and facial features. Later it was repaired by Jo Mora.

Campbell To Request Sign Case Dismissal

Dismissal of the charges of petit theft against Sammy Sampson in connection with the taking of the wrought iron sign from her tea room will be demanded when her case comes up Monday morning, it was disclosed today by Argyll Campbell, deputy district attorney.

Campbell who was to prosecute the case, said there was no basis for the complaint and as deputy district attorney would ask its dismissal.

The complaint against Sammy was sworn out by Hugh Comstock, Carmel builder. He charged that she took the sign which belonged to him, before she had finished paying for it.

Sammy, however, does not want the case dismissed. She has instructed her attorneys to push through the hearing to clear up her name.

City Officials Puzzled as Sale of "Brain-Teasers" Increases

Carmel city officials this week mailed, do not believe in the rolled up their sleeves and put threat, for they have made a report to postal inspectors. According to Postmaster William Overstreet, there is a strict federal regulation against sending letters of this type through the mail.

Not only are Carmel women, who have always stood for the independence of their sex, prepared to fight the proposed prohibitive ordinance, but they have lined up a number of merchants on their own side.

In the meantime, despite the efforts of Carmel husbands, the sale of the puzzles has increased materially. One local store reporting a daily sale of 50 to 100 puzzles.

In the petition recently presented to the council, the signers charged that the puzzles have monopolized the entire time of housewives, keeping them in "constrained and unhealthful positions from the performance of such duties as bed making, dish-washing, answering the telephone and door bell."

It was charged today, however, that not only have the puzzles interrupted domestic home life, but they have interfered with such commercial enterprises as local theatricals and moving picture shows. Even the library staff has reported a tremendous decrease in the circulation of books.

Miss Frances King of the Tyler book shop, said today that she and several merchants who sell and rent out puzzles, were ready to fight against the passage of the proposed ordinance which would ban their sale in Carmel.

"We are ready to employ the best attorney in Monterey county if the ordinance is passed and we will fight up to the highest court," Miss King said. "The council cannot take the liberty away from Carmel women."

Similar views were expressed by Don Staniford, L. S. Slevin and others who sell the puzzles in Carmel.

Police Seek Poisoner Following Dog's Death

Carmel police were this week conducting an exhaustive search in the hope of catching the person responsible for poisoning a police dog belonging to Al Peddiford, Santa Fe street resident.

Peddiford who conducts a restaurant in downtown Carmel left his home early in the morning. When he returned, he found his large police dog stretched on the floor. Veterinarians who examined the stomach of the dog said there was no doubt that it had been poisoned.

Happy Days Here Again, "Carmel Sun" To Rise

others who sell the puzzles in Carmel.

Mayor John Catlin indicated today that no action on the proposed ordinance would be taken by the council pending an investigation.

"If a sufficient number of residents want to ban the puzzles, the council may pass the ordinance," Mayor Catlin said. "Personally, however, I am against any measure which prohibits such type of entertainment."

Carmel apparently is not the only city where the jig-saw puzzles have become a fad. Throughout the country, it is reported, the craze has spread in similar fashion to the "pee-wee golf courses."

Dog Turns on Woman. Inflicts Many Bites

Mrs. A. S. Gaylord, prominent San Antonio street resident, was under a physician's care today from serious wounds suffered when her dog turned on her Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Gaylord was attempting to part her two dogs which became involved in a fight. Suddenly her Chow dog leaped at her biting her arms and legs before Mrs. Gaylord fought him off.

After emergency treatment by Dr. Margaret Levick she was taken to the Morgan Rest cottage where Mrs. Gaylord is reported to be recovering.

special balancing act—appearing for the first time since he has been in Carmel.

The vaudeville acts are but introductory to the mystery play, the scene of which is staged right in the theatre, the audience taking an active part in solving the crime committed in front of their eyes.

The mystery drama which will also be seen here tomorrow night and Sunday night played successfully for a solid year in the east. From the rise of the curtain to the last dramatic line, the action is swift and impossible to anticipate.

Those in the play include, Peter Burk as Chatrand, the magician and John Stanley as the mysterious Alexander. Peggy Converse who did so splendidly in "The Doll's House," will again have a leading part in "The Spider." Others in the cast include, Hildreth Masten, Dorothy Ledyard, Ruth Austin, Ernie Schweninger, Heinie Leppert, Richard Masten, Eddie Caponi, Jack Gribner and half a dozen others.

Galt Bell as usual is directing.

Rain Falls, Mercury Drops and Carmelites Shiver

The mercury took another substantial drop during the week, but it was not as cold as during the Christmas period.

According to the figures of the Carmel coastal laboratory as interpreted by Dr. Ferdinand Haasis, the temperature recorded was the lowest this week on Tuesday morning when the mercury dropped to 32 degrees. During the holidays, the temperature went as low as 30 degrees.

The rain storm which started on Sunday and up to Thursday afternoon left a record rainfall of 2.32 inches. Most of the rain during the storm fell Wednesday night and Thursday morning, when the weather gauge recorded 1.34 inches.

Resident Loses $500 When Caught in "Badger" Game

The old "badger game" is not too old to be worked again—even in Carmel!

It caused this week one resident the loss in hard earned money which he'll probably never see again.

The resident, whose name has not been revealed by authorities, met one of the gypsies who were reading palms in Carmel early this week. The victim was in a compromising situation when the irate "husband" arrived.

For the sum of $500 and a watch the husband agreed not to cause trouble for the duped victim. When the victim realized he had been cleaned out by the old badger game, he made a report of it to Chief of Police Gus Englund and Sheriff Carl H. Abbott.

Description of the gypsies and the "husband," said to be John Myers, 25, has been wired all over the state and may result in their arrest.

The gypsies were in town for several days, reading palms on Dolores street. It is understood that several other residents were "gyped" but fearing the publicity have not made a report of it to authorities.

Ball Players Urged To Sign for Season

Prospective ball players in Carmel who want to participate this season in the games of the Abalone League were asked this week to sign up at Staniford's drug store.

"Silver Dollar" To Open Here Sunday

"Silver Dollar" which played to a capacity house at the Golden State will have its run at the Carmel Theatre next Sunday and Monday. This picture which is holding a four star rating by Liberty magazine is no doubt the outstanding picture of the year. Edward G. Robinson plays the leading part.

Sunset School News

Mid-year graduation exercises were held last Friday at Sunset School with five students completing their elementary work. Carmel Cross, Ralph Crumney, Russell Morrison, Betty Uzzell, and Cole Weston, were presented diplomas by Dr. Ferdinand Haasis of the School Board. Brief farewell speeches by the graduates and an impressive candle ceremony by a group of Eighth grade girls constituted the program.

On the following Monday evening, Betty Uzzell and Cole Weston were awarded the American Legion scholarship honors for outstanding work in their class.

A mid-year school paper will be published next week by Sunset School students. The paper is being produced by a representative group of students from each class, with Earle Dorrance as Editor. Roger Fulton is assistant editor, and Dick Tevis, business manager. The paper will include reports on various school activities, accounts of classroom projects, and individual creative efforts in the field of literature, poetry, and art.

Carmel Pottery Studio Is Now Open

The Carmel Pottery Studio is now open under the direction of Mrs. Gertrude R. Wall of Berkeley who is well known in Carmel, having visited here frequently.

Mrs. Wall, who has her own studio in Berkeley, is connected with the University of California in Berkeley, directs the Halcon Pottery near San Luis Obispo and was formerly in charge of vocational work for women in San Quentin Prison.

The studio opened under the postoffice last Friday afternoon and is offering sincere students an opportunity to develop originality in this creative field. A number of students are already at work, several coming weekly from Watsonville. Others are expected from nearby towns.

Newberry's Authentic Autobiography

XXXIII Continued

During that interlude of idleness while the job was preparing, I had started another boys' book, "The Stolen God of the Hung Hu Tse," which Harry Lafler took serial rights in, practically unsight, unseen. Its first installment appeared in the Blue Mule that summer, and the Blue Mule then curled up and died. It left me with all but the opening chapters of a long story on my hands, for I had finished it finally. Instead of throwing this away, I added ten or twelve years to my hero's age, wrote a new opening, and shipped it eastward as a tale for adults, under the title, "A Nose for News." The Peoples Magazine bought it, sending me my first real check of substantial quality.

I also sold several short stories to the pulp magazines, as the popular story monthlies are called. I did not aim very high, and perhaps because of that had none of the long season of waiting, hoping and trying, with endless rejection slips, that makes up the tale of most beginners at fiction writing. It was a time of great vogue for the western story of adventure, and I had the material for that type of yarns. I studied the market for fiction, just as I studied the market for Carnation Mush, and sent my manuscripts to likely purchasers, rather than hit or miss. Later on, when my whole time was given to writing, I got an agent in New York to peddle my stuff, finding that the middleman earned his cost in the arts as in commerce.

We lived on Telegraph Hill, still in one of Harry Lafler's shacks, but paying tenants now. The Gianduja, a restaurant at the foot of the hill that had been built since the fire, with Gio Brenta its owner and chef, began to gather, one by one, the scattered Bohemians who had remained in San Francisco, and the new crop that was springing up. Among a roomful of Italians, a table became surrounded by Americans, grew to a larger table and then became densely crowded. Talk of art and letters mingled with the dinner chatter of the Italians, and as San Francisco gradually moved back down-town, something of the old spirit crept into the section of the city known as North Beach.

XXXIV

It was in the summer of 1908 that William J. Burns came to me from Rudolph Spreckles asking that I take on the headquarters management of the campaign in San Francisco for the election of superior court judges. The prosecution, he said, was finding the pressure of opposition growing stronger each day, and feared that the fall election might leave them crippled in the courts by the rejection of the men upon whom they relied in the judiciary. With no liking for Spreckles, and owing nothing to either Burns, Heney or Langdon, I would have refused the proposition, but Charles E. Grosjean, manager of the concern where I was employed, urged me to accept, and offered to loan me for the purpose. His feeling was that the prosecution deserved any help it asked in carrying on a great work of reform for San Francisco.

I shall never forget the first meeting of political workers called together for that campaign. The place was the directors' room in Spreckles' bank, with Rudolph Spreckles, looking quite like the German Kaiser, and no more approachable, seated, throne-like, at the end of a long table, around which were gathered such practical politicians as Dan Ryan, Dick Welch and other short-hairs. No possibility of assimilation; they barely spoke each other's language. My friends left that conference saying that henceforth I must be the intermediary between them and Spreckles, and refusing to take his dictatorial orders.

Had I not been intensely interested in the campaign, I would never have remained a week to be treated like one of Spreckles' office boys, made to wait his convenience for hours when it was important to get to him at once, trying to hold together people whom he antagonized at every interview, doing politics for a man whose only idea of politics was absolute Tsarism. We won that campaign through the loyalty of the men who had battled with me twice before, and because of an honest electorate that still believed in Langdon and Heney. Only one year later, because of the mistakes made by the dictator of the prosecution, Heney went down to defeat, beaten for district attorney by Charles M. Fickert, unknown and unhonored.

I had made up my mind to keep clear of the city political battle of 1909. I was busy with an advertising campaign that meant painting Carnation Mush in big, bright letters on the building walls and barn roofs from the Canadian line to Mexico, from the Mississippi to the sea, and doing novelettes for the pulps, and had no inclination for more of politics. I agreed to look after my own district, the 45th, and call it a day. So I made a hitch-up with Eddie Buckley and Doc Plincz, the former a political livery-stableman of North Beach, the latter a physician on Russian Hill with a knack for politics, and we divided the delegates for the district between us, and rested easily in the conviction of their certain election at the primaries.

About a month before the primaries, handbills were circulated at the house doors in my district, announcing a mass meeting to hear Hiram Johnson speak on local issues at a Powell street hall. I knew Hiram Johnson as the attorney who, when Francis J. Heney was shot, stepped into his place to continue the prosecutions. He was a fine attorney and a man of courage and honesty. Recently, he had moved into the 45th district, on its aristocratic side, for the 45th spread over goat-haunted Telegraph Hill, across democratic North Beach and up genteel Russian Hill a ways.

Curious to learn what Hiram Johnson had to say to our people, I attended his meeting to find that he was placing an opposition ticket of delegates in the field to contest my combination with Buckley and Plincz. That was a strange situation, and needed explanation. Our delegates, if elected, would take my orders in convention, and I certainly should be on the same side of any battle there with Hiram Johnson. I asked him what the idea was, to be told that he had acted on instructions from city headquarters.

So I went downtown next morning and found our party headquarters in an upper floor of the Mills building, with a young attorney who had been a district worker under me two years before, Edwin T. MacMurray of the 39th, in charge. To my request for an explanation, he grandiloquently told me that this year I was to "go way back, and sit down." No delegation that I controlled, he said, would be in the convention, nor would I have any part in the campaign. I gathered from what he said that he didn't like me a bit. I might have merely smiled, and gone back to the mush factory, except for my partners in the combination, Buckley and Plincz. I mustn't let them down.

Carefree GAS Heating Equipment

There are still several months of cold weather to come. Be prepared. Make good your resolve to live in comfort by changing to Controlled Gas Heat.

Outside it will be cold with most of our heavy rains yet to come. But the temperature within your home depends whether your heating system maintains an even flow of warmth in abundance. Gas heating equipment Controlled by electric button, key, or automatic thermostat, does this job well and without attention.

Old-fashioned heating systems cannot cope with wintry weather and are extravagant and wasteful of fuel. Modern gas heating equipment that gives whole-house Comfort Zone warmth is a lasting investment in the finest type of heating equipment that money can buy. Prices are now extremely low. It will pay you to investigate gas heating equipment for your home at this time.

THE VILLAGE NEWS-REEL

Dorothy Brett, noted English painter is planning to spend the spring in Carmel together with Mable Dodge Luhan. Tony Luhan is expected to come here shortly. Mrs. Luhan's book on D. H. Lawrence was one of the outstanding literary sensations of 1932.

One of the delightful affairs of the week was a buffet supper given Sunday night at the home of Miss Patricia Field in Carmel. The party was given in honor of Miss Charlotte Laurence whose birthday it was. Among the guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ranald Cockburn, Miss Marguerite Tickle, Miss Charlotte Laurence, Baron Von Hiedeken, Lieut. Powers and Lieut. Thelan.

A number of Carmel and Peninsula people attended the Badminton tournament held last Saturday in Palo Alto. Among those from Carmel who participated were: Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Van Riper, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Crossman, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Fuller, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Whitman, Miss Margaret Moll, Miss Patricia Field and Miss Marguerite Tickle.

Aluncheon party was given recently by Mable Dodge Luhan who has rented the Stewart home for the summer. Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Robinson Jeffers, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roberts Aldrich, Viscountess Brett and George Gordon Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis McComas entertained at tea yesterday in their Pebble Beach studio in honor of Major and Mrs. Richard McCreery and Lady Rachel Howard who are at Del Monte for the polo season. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Henry Delafield Phelps,

Mr. and Mrs. S. F. B. Morse, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Fish, Mr. and Mrs. Byington Ford, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Tyrrell-Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Winslow, Captain and Mrs. Henry Forester, Mrs. George Gordon Moore and Captain Selby McCreery.

On Sunday Mr. and Mrs. S. F. B. Morse will entertain Major and Mrs. McCreery and Lady Howard at luncheon, and following Sunday afternoon's polo game at Del Monte, Mr. and Mrs. Eric Tyrrell-Martin will give a large tea in their honor. Lady Rachel Howard, daughter of the Duke of Norfolk, and a member of the oldest family in England, divides her time between Del Monte and Burlingame, where she is the house guest of Major and Mrs. McCreery, with whom she lately arrived in this country.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward E. Hills and Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Hills of Burlingame are spending the weekend at Del Monte Lodge at Pebble Beach. Mrs. Atholl McBean of San Francisco is at Hotel Del Monte for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Boke and their son Richard, Jr., are now at home to their friends in their home in Carmel Valley. Mr. and Mrs. Boke have taken the McDonald place for the next eight months.

On Thursday afternoon, Mrs. Herman Crossman gave a delightful luncheon at the Old Monterey Polo Club which was followed with an afternoon of badminton and bridge. Her guests were Mesdames: Lloyd Tevis, Paul Whitman, Adolphe Hanke, Muriel Marsh, Charles Van Riper, Richard Tunison, Charles Frost, Walter Snook, Charles Fuller, Frederick Calkins, Misses Margaret Moll and Jane Burritt.

Frank Piazza, a newspaper man from Oakland, was in Carmel for a short visit this week.

Christian Science Churches

"Truth" will be the subject of the Lesson-Sermon Sunday, January 22, in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass. The citations which comprise the Lesson-Sermon will include the following from the Bible: "Then said Jesus to those Jews which believed on him, If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; And ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free" (John 8:31, 32).

The Lesson-Sermon also will include the following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "The best sermon ever preached is Truth practised and demonstrated by the destruction of sin, sickness, and death. Truth makes a new creature, in whom old things pass away and 'all things are become new.' Passions, selfishness, false appetites, hatred, fear, all sensuality, yield to spirituality, and the superabundance of being is on the side of God, good" (p. 201).

The following petition will be presented to the Honorable Planning Commission of Monterey County on January 31st

Honorable Planning Commission of Monterey County

We, the undersigned, being property owners or residents of the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea and environs, who would be vitally, directly and indirectly effected by any zoning advocated by your commission, hereby petition you to protect the present beautiful and desirable entrance to our city by recommending to the Honorable Board of Supervisors of Monterey County only such zoning as would permanently restrict a strip of land 500 feet wide on each side of the State Highway between the present approximate location of the Del Monte Properties Toll Gate, at the top of the Carmel Hill, and the point where the said State Highway now or eventually will cross the Carmel River, and recommend that the said strip of land be zoned for residential purposes only.

We not only request and petition this on our own behalf but on behalf of the entire state of California. This section is the Northern entrance to the Carmel-San Simeon Highway and the newly created Point Lobos State Park, both of which were constructed and acquired by the State of California at a cost of many millions of dollars to the citizens, chiefly and primarily for the purpose of displaying to and preserving for the citizens of our State and visitors the unparralleled and unsurpassed natural beauty of the Monterey Peninsula. We do not desire to have the purposes, for which these great expenditures have been made, deteriorated by allowing commercial enterprises to exist at the very entrance to California's most attractive and renowned section.

We respectfully submit the same herewith for your consideration:

All residents and property owners of Carmel, Hatton Fields, La Loma Terrace, Carmel Woods and environs are urgently requested to sign this petition immediately.
